Adam and Shoes for the Cure,

I wanted to let everyone know what a great program Shoes For The Cure has provided us here at Spanish River High School in Boca Raton.

I am the sponsor of the Spanish River Environmental Club and for years we have been recycling batteries, ink jet cartridges, and electronic components and we are currently making money for our club through these items. Adam Levine gave me a call recently and asked if he could set up a Shoes For The Cure bin on our campus to collect shoes. From day one, the response from our students was overwhelming. It seems like everyone has some slightly used shoes sitting in the bottom of the closet somewhere. Now we are currently getting neighbors of students to help us out with this worthwhile endeavor as well. Shoes For The Cure got us set up with flyers and a great looking recycle bin for our recycled shoes here on campus.

I would wholeheartedly recommend Shoes For The Cure to come by your school and get your campus "Going Green" like they have ours. In our case we added Shoes For The Cure to an existing recycling program but this project is a great starter for any school that is thinking about getting in on the recycling bandwagon. Math teachers can track the progress of donations on a pie or bar graph and Science teachers can have a working model of a recycle program and track all the steps of a recycled item. There are so many ways this recycle program can get the interest of students and being able to teach the students the importance of recycling.

I am thrilled with my association with Shoes For The Cure...I'm sure you will be too!!

Adam Levine and Shoes For The Cure,

On behalf of Spanish River Community High School I would like to thank you for your donation to one of our family members here at school.

One of our school employees lost nearly all of his family members in Haiti due to the earthquake that recently shook the island nation. His one surviving family member, a 6 year old son, has been transported to a hospital in Miami last week and is being treated for various medical problems due to his injuries. The son will be coming home soon but is having many psychological problems related to his trauma and loss of his family.

As soon as I had mentioned this to Adam he responded by the end of that day with a load of donated clothes, shoes, personal items, as well as hygiene products. All I had asked for were some shoes for this young boy but Adam took it upon himself to help the family out in ways they never even dreamed of.

I tip my hat to Adam and Shoes For The Cure for going above and beyond the call of duty in helping this family in their most desperate time of need. Having a sponsor like Shoes For The Cure has already made a major impact not only on this family but has demonstrated Adam's desire to help the very community he lives in. Kudos to you!!

Thank you again for helping us out,
